

DR. THOMAS A. WEBER

I was born on November 28th (1968) in Chur and grew up in Maienfeld, where my parents managed Schloss Brandis for several years. In 1989, I completed my Matura in Schiers. After that, I studied sports at ETH Zurich for one semester, but due to my visual impairment, this field of study wasn't the most suitable for me. Therefore, I changed my major and began to study human medicine, completing three semesters. In April 1993, I moved to Bloomington, Minnesota, to study chiropractic. In 1994, I met my wife Caroline, and later we had three sons.

I completed my studies in December 1996 and returned to beautiful Switzerland. In 1997, I passed the first part of my state exam while working with Dr. Urs Rohner in St. Moritz. In 1998, I spent a year as an assistant to Dr. Beatrice Mikus in Schaan. Afterward, I moved with my family to Lugano, where I successfully completed my assistantship and the second part of my state exam by 2003.

In parallel, in 2003, I opened my own practice in Chur and Buchs. Four years later, I closed my practice in Chur and became a member of a group practice in Heerbrugg, which was a practice for internal medicine, including Dr. Martin Rhyner. After several years, I stopped working in Heerbrugg and relocated my practice in Buchs to Grabs, partly because the Fit-In fitness center had moved there as well.

Since then, I've been working in Grabs, and when I felt the need for a new challenge, I got in touch with Dr. Roy Bösiger. He offered me the opportunity to establish myself in his practice in Bad Ragaz. Since then, I work two mornings per week at Chiropraktik Bad Ragaz, and I'm very excited to welcome you as patients and clients here with us.
